

Author Benno Kurvits

bennokurvits.com

NEWSLETTER #4

May 6, 2025

“Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you.” (Robert Fulghum)

*“My heart is overflowing with a good theme;
I recite my composition concerning the King;
My tongue is the pen of a ready writer.”*

PSALM 45:1

BENNO K

Cookies and Tea, Polishing and Publishing

We’ve probably all read Robert Fulghum’s elegant little piece titled, All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten. I can certainly relate to it, especially as I slow down. I mean, who can argue with: “Think what a better world it would be if we all . . . had cookies and milk about three o’clock every afternoon and then lay down with our blankets for a nap.”

It’s been a long time since my last newsletter, but writing has never been far from my thoughts. In fact, I’ve spent the last two years rewriting a manuscript that I began almost ten years ago. It has been a major undertaking—researching, writing, listening, rewriting, polishing, formatting, tweaking—with regular afternoon tea and cookies becoming a part of my routine, not to mention semifrequent naps with a blankie.

A day or so ago, I received the happy news that my book has passed its necessary review at my self-publishing company. That means, God willing, its release date may still be met: May 17, 2025.

My book is titled, How Do You Read It? Twenty Principles for Interpreting the Bible Well. I describe my passion for this subject being “like Jeremiah of old . . . a fire in my bones that cannot be contained (Jer. 20:9).”

I hope you’ll consider obtaining a copy and reading it with milk and cookies. Look for it on Amazon.ca in a few weeks.

Cheers, Benno